DETAILED ACTION

This is response to amendment filed 10/21/05.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

1. Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-3, 6, 9-11, 14-16, 19-21, 24-26 and 29-31 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Goldberg et al. (US 6496833) (Goldberg).

Regarding claims 1, 6, 9, 14, 19, 24 and 29, Goldberg discloses: A method and a database management system adapted to process queries in a pervasive computing environment and a program product comprising computer readable program code on one or more media said program code being capable of controlling and configuring a computer system having one or more computers to perform the process of :

a. receiving queries in a query language the queries comprising a plurality of query terms (col. 11, lines 21-36, Goldberg);

Art Unit: 2161

b. interpreting the queries by associating at least one declarative language function with the query terms (col. 11, 44-57, Goldberg);

c. converting the queries represented by the at least one declarative language function to a plurality of imperative language statement (col. 11, 44 to col. 12, lines 50, Goldberg); and

d. executing the imperative language statements (col. 17, lines 50 to col. 18, lines 7, Goldberg).

Regarding claims 2, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30 all the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1, 9, 14, 19, 24 and 29 above, respectively. In addition, Goldberg discloses: comprising converting the query language to an intermediate tree representation corresponding to the at least one declarative language function associated with the plurality of query terms, and thereafter converting the query to at least one data structure that is interpreted by an imperative language interpreter core to perform the queries (col. 11, lines 14 to col. 12, lines 50, Goldberg).

Regarding claims 3, 11, 16, 21, 26, 31 all the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 2, 10, 15, 20, 25 and 30 above, respectively. In addition, Goldberg discloses: wherein the declarative language function is identified by a pointer to further code such that the declarative language function is treated as data within the plurality of imperative language statements (col. 11, lines 14 to col. 12, lines 50, Goldberg).

3. Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4, 7, 12, 17, 22, 27 and 32 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goldberg et al. (U.S 6496833) (Goldberg) in view of Steele JR. et al. (U.S 2001/0056420) (Steele).

Regarding claims 4, 7, 12, 17, 22, 27 and 32, all the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claim 1, 6, 9, 14, 19, 24 and 29 above, respectively. However, Goldberg didn't disclose: wherein the declarative language is chosen from the group consisting of ML, LISP, and HASKELL. On the other hand, Steele discloses: ML, LISP and HASKELL. Thus, at the time invention was made, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to include the ML, LISP, HASKELL in the system of Goldberg as taught by Steele. The motivation being to enable system uses declarative language (they can be ML, LISP, HASKELL or a like) due to programming conventions for converting database record to correspond to the query request as modified by the client computer system.

5. Claims 5, 8, 13, 18, 23, 28 and 33 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goldberg et al. (6496833) (Goldberg) in view of Agesen (U.S 6711672).

Regarding claims 5, 8, 13, 18, 23, 28 and 33 all the limitations of this claim have been noted in the rejection of claims 1, 6, 9, 14, 19, 24 and 29 above, respectively. However, Goldberg didn't disclose: wherein the imperative language is chosen from the group consisting of C, C++, Java, Modula2, and SmallTalk. On the other hand, Agesen discloses: wherein the imperative language is chosen from the group consisting of C, C++, Java, Modula2, and SmallTalk (col. 2, lines 34-49, Agesen). Thus, at the time invention was made, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to include the C, C++, Java, Modula2, and SmallTalk in the system of Goldberg as taught by Agesen. The motivation being to enable system uses high level programming languages due to programming conventions for converting database record to correspond to the query request as modified by the client computer system.
